Compliance Review

A compliance review is a useful exercise for an organisation to baseline existing processes and procedures against the GDPR. Often companies choose to undertake a review every one to two years to check that ongoing compliance is being maintained and any issues identified are documented in a report alongside an action plan for improvement.

Deep Dive Consultancy

Where a compliance review is designed to provide an overview of a business as a whole, a deep dive is intended as a more detailed and specific review with a much narrower focus.

Some examples of typical deep dive projects include:

- Data Audit
- Staff Training and awareness
- Supply chain due diligence
- Analysis of CCTV usage

Support Desk

Available during office hours, clients can log calls via the internet/phone and issues are dealt with via a dedicated team of support professionals.

Subscription to DataWise

Data Protection Compliance Software - DataWise designed as a central record keeping system for all data protection related functions, including monitoring staff training, managing FOI/ DSAR responses, logging all relevant policies/procedures/ contracts, dealing with data breach responses and managing an organisation's information asset register.

Proactive consulting time

Support contracts provide proactive consultancy time to assist in the delivery of a compliance programme and/or used as an "insurance policy" to assist with any future issues after compliance is achieved.

Information Governance Framework

The Information Governance Framework (IGF) is DPP's suite of GDPR based policies and procedures. This is an extensive and detailed resource. Organisations can tailor the framework to their specific data protection needs.
